Morfeo

NIGHT TABLE

Generated: 23/11/2026

Morfeo night table is a bedroom complement characterized by an essential design, leather upholstery and a composition articulated through an open compartment, drawer and marble elements. It belongs to Morfeo collection, which also includes coordinated storage units.

The structure, upholstered with leather, is decorated with a series of parallel horizontal engravings. This workmanship articulates the surfaces, introduces rhythm and becomes the main distinctive feature of the collection.

The drawer can be opened through a metal profile integrated into the design of the night table.

The open compartment has a lacquered finish available in different colours and is internally illuminated by LED light. The lighting enhances the depth of the compartment and allows the space to be used for books and objects.

Marble is used for the top and basement: natural stone introduces veining and chromatic variations, creating a dialogue with leather, lacquer and integrated light.

This night table is available in a compact version and in a larger configuration with the drawer positioned on either the right or left side. The lateral placement of the storage creates an asymmetrical composition and allows the product to adapt to the layout of the room.

Handmade in Italy, Morfeo combines leather, marble, lacquer, metal and integrated lighting in a functional element with a strong material identity.
