SOFA

Isla sofa is a large circular seat designed as an island dedicated to informal relaxation. Its geometry is based on a generous circular volume on which two opposing back-to-back backrests are developed, allowing the seating to be used in different orientations.

Its circular shape eliminates any dominant orientation, allowing the sofa to be viewed and used from multiple sides. The two central backrests organize the surface without interrupting the continuity of the volume, making Isla the perfect choice for the centre of any ambience.

The configuration encourages a freer way of using the sofa than a traditional linear model. People can sit on opposite sides while maintaining different relationships with the surrounding space, while the large circular seat retains a compact and immediately recognizable presence.

Isla can be used as a stand-alone element or as a complement to the seating system from the same collection, introducing circular geometry into more articulated living compositions. It is available in leather or fabric upholstery.

Handmade in Italy, Isla circular sofa interprets comfort in the HESSENTIA language through circular shape, generous seating and a double opposing backrest, transforming the sofa into an element capable of organizing space even from a central position.
