Poly

RUG

Poly is a contemporary rug made entirely by hand using the hand-tufting technique. Designed as a highly customisable surface, it allows shape, colour, size and pile height to be adjusted according to the features of the ambience.

The handcrafted process allows the rug to be shaped directly. The yarn is gradually worked into a surface whose design depends on both colour and pile.

Pile height plays a role in the design itself: variations in height change the way light meets the rug, introducing reliefs, subtle shadows and different tactile sensations within the same piece.

The shape and size can be adapted to the interior design layout, allowing Poly to follow specific proportions or relate to unconventional furniture settings.

Geometry, colour and density thus become variables within the same system, allowing the rug to take on a more restrained or more expressive presence.

Poly interprets the custom rug as a tailored element designed to measure, bringing together artisanal tufting, colour, shape and pile height in keeping with HESSENTIA's exploration of textile materials.

HESSENTIA can customise this item to meet the requirements of your project. Some limitations apply.
