Faraday is a contemporary high-backed armchair defined by the contrast between the rigour of the metal structure and the softness of the upholstered seat. Within the HESSENTIA world, this armchair interprets the language of Faraday collection in a sculptural configuration that ideally recalls a throne.

The metal structure wraps around the seat and transforms the back into an element capable of defining an intimate space, while maintaining clear legibility between structure, upholstery and function.

The metal is enhanced by hand engraving inspired by the techniques of Italian high jewellery. The engraved mark animates the surface, generates variations of light and enhances the artisanal quality through which every detail is created.

Within the structure, the seat and back cushions introduce softness and comfort. The contrast between the rigour of the metal and the tactile quality of the upholstery creates a balance between formal austerity, welcome and material research.

This armchair can be upholstered in leather or fabric and customized through different combinations of finishes and colours. Its vertical presence makes it suitable for residential interiors, lounge areas, hospitality ambiences and interior projects in which the seat takes on a central role.

Handmade in Italy, Faraday combines furniture design, artistic metalworking and the tailoring sensitivity of upholstery.
