Ryo

ARMCHAIR

For HESSENTIA, Ryo is a contemporary armchair with broad, unconventional proportions, designed to provide a spacious and enveloping seat. Its identity comes from the encounter between circular and semicircular shapes, organized through a system of interlocking elements that alternates solid surfaces, openings and curved volumes.

The widened profile breaks away from the traditional composition of the compact armchair. Seat and backrest relate through continuous geometries, creating a visual movement that ideally recalls the infinity symbol.

The succession of solids and voids lightens the overall perception of the volume and makes the structure of the design legible from different viewpoints. Each element contributes to defining a seat in which shape, function and compositional rhythm coincide.

The breadth of the seat and the inclination of the back are designed to accommodate the body and support moments of relaxation. Surfaces upholstered in textured fabrics enhance the softness of the curves and introduce tactile depth, strengthening the contrast with the metal elements that define the character of the armchair. The hand-decorated metal structure generates subtle contrasts and gives depth to the surface.

Ryo can be customized through different upholstery options and finishes, adapting to residential interiors, lounge areas and contemporary hospitality projects. Handmade in Italy, it interprets the armchair as an open, dynamic composition balanced between comfort, geometry and material research.
