

Altea is a freestanding unit designed to take centre stage in a living area, making a striking impression from every angle thanks to its balanced proportions and refined surfaces. It is a piece that divides without closing off, organises without overwhelming, creating a seamless connection between different areas.

A distinctive feature is the system of 180° rotating doors, which allows for variable configurations and flexible use of the compartments.

The structure is covered in hand-woven jute, an artisanal finish that enhances the texture of the natural fabric: every surface tells a unique story, characterised by irregular weaves and gentle shades of colour that make each piece authentically one-of-a-kind.
