Dool is an upholstered armchair with an informal, contemporary character, defined by the contrast between the softness of the seat and the decisive presence of the metal structure. Its compact proportions and enveloping profile create a welcoming ambience conceived for relaxation and for versatile use across different interior contexts.

The upholstered section includes seat and back and develops through soft volumes, carefully covered to enhance comfort and surface continuity. The structure of the armchair is supported laterally by two trapezoidal metal elements that simultaneously act as structural supports and armrests.

These elements introduce a strong, recognizable geometric sign into the design. Their breadth visually balances the upholstered body and creates a precise contrast between structural rigour and tactile softness. Metal does not act as a simple detail, but participates directly in defining the identity of the armchair.

Dool can be customized through a selection of fabrics and leathers, allowing the upholstery, tactile perception and chromatic character to adapt to the requirements of the interior project. The versatility of the finishes makes it suitable for residential interiors and lounge areas.

Handmade in Italy, Dool interprets the contemporary armchair for HESSENTIA through a balance between comfort, geometry and structural precision.
