Gea

RUG

Generated: 24/11/2026

Gea is a contemporary rug made by hand using the hand-tufting technique, defined by a soft outline and a composition that departs from the rigidity of traditional rectangular geometry.

Curved lines flow across the rug, creating a continuous movement in which the outer shape and internal lines become part of the same composition.

Tufting makes the yarn an integral part of the design. The textile surface gains depth and gives the geometric shapes a softer character, bringing design and material into a close relationship.

Gea comes in different proportions, from more compact configurations to larger versions. The wide options of size customisation allow the rug to adapt to different living areas and complement seating arrangements of different sizes.

The rug is perceived as more than a boundary on the floor: it becomes a surface that follows and complements the architecture of the ambience.

Gea interprets HESSENTIA's textile design through fluid forms, artisanal tufting and a relationship with space, transforming the rug into a textured presence that defines the ambience while retaining a sense of fluidity.

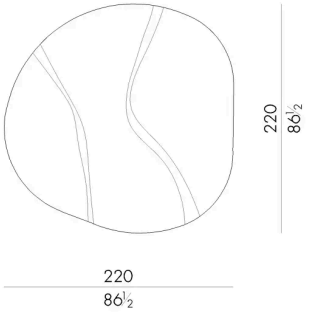

HESSENTIA can customise this item to meet the requirements of your project. Some limitations apply.
