Linfa

STORAGE UNIT

Linfa storage unit places marble at the centre of the composition through drawers fronts that make natural stone the main material of this piece. Veining, colours and variations become part of the design, giving each configuration a character consistent with the specific selection of material.

The relationship between marble, metal and lacquer reveals the layered construction of the storage unit. Stone is used for the front, metal introduces precision at structural points, and lacquer follows the side shapes with continuity.

Inside are two smaller drawers designed to hold cutlery sets. Metal and saddle leather characterise these elements, extending the exploration of materials into the most intimate parts of the piece.

In HESSENTIA's vision, Linfa is available in two height configurations, preserving the same relationship between marble fronts and side structure.

Linfa storage unit allows stone to express its uniqueness through distinctive veining and variations, while metal, lacquer and saddle leather define a precise, restrained structure around the marble.

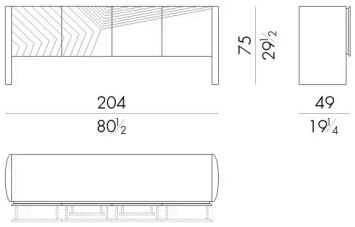

HESSENTIA can customize this piece to suit your project needs. Some limitations apply.
