COFFEE TABLE

The Joss coffee table, in the marble and ash wood version, is defined by the encounter between two natural materials with strong individual identities. Stone and wood interact through contrasting veining, tones and surfaces, creating a balance between the solidity of marble and the expressive warmth of ash wood.

The two materials converge at a single point, the focal element of the entire design, where the connection itself becomes a visible part of the composition. This meeting point brings material and structure together through an essential gesture that makes the design language of the Joss collection immediately recognizable.

The natural variations of the marble and the ever-changing grain of the wood make each coffee table unique in appearance, enhancing the authentic character of both materials.

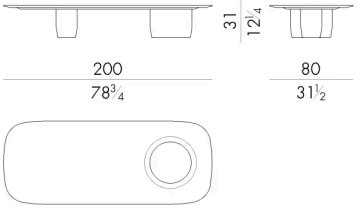

Within the HESSENTIA living space, Joss in marble and ash wood becomes a contemporary, material-driven coffee table that brings together natural stone, wood and design sensitivity in a balanced composition, Handmade in Italy.
