Greffage

STORAGE UNIT

Greffage is the collection's bar cabinet, distinguished from the storage unit by its smaller dimensions, vertical orientation and flap door. Its specific function is integrated into the collection's design language while retaining its own identity.

Horizontal and vertical elements pass through the structure, dividing the solid volumes. Their intersections create a sequence of support surfaces at different levels, revealing the construction even when the cabinet is closed.

The flap door allows part of the volume to become a functional surface during use. Opening it temporarily changes the geometry of the piece and reveals a space dedicated to entertaining.

When closed, Greffage returns to a compact, ordered composition. The transition between closed and open thus becomes part of the experience of the product.

Compared with the storage unit in the same collection, the bar cabinet develops a more vertical relationship with space, concentrating the system of solid volumes, shelves and intersections within smaller dimensions.

Within HESSENTIA's world, Greffage interprets the contemporary bar cabinet as a small architectural volume in which function, movement and articulated surfaces coexist in balance.

HESSENTIA can customize this piece to suit your project needs. Some limitations apply.
