Kos

STORAGE UNIT

Kos is a contemporary storage unit composed of three overlapping rectangular volumes. The offset arrangement and interplay between the different volumes create a distinctly horizontal geometric composition.

The design arises from the meeting of wood and marble, two natural materials with different visual and tactile characteristics. Wood introduces continuity and warmth, while marble brings veining, colour variations and the uniqueness of stone into the composition.

The overlapping arrangement of the three elements reveals the construction of the storage unit, transforming it into a sequence of distinct volumes. The geometry remains essential, allowing the materials to bring depth and character to each individual surface.

Kos includes four drawers within the structure. Storage is thus integrated into the composition while preserving the captivating design rhythm.

Wood and marble meet while retaining their identities: the continuity of the fibres engages with the unique movement of the stone, balancing geometric order with natural variation.

For HESSENTIA, Kos interprets storage unit through clear proportions and authentic material, expressing a contemporary vision of Handmade in Italy founded on the relationship between design and selected materials.

HESSENTIA can customize this piece to suit your project needs. Some limitations apply.
