Kaos

RUG

Kaos is a contemporary rug made by hand using the hand-tufting technique, defined by a free-flowing composition of soft, irregular shapes that meet and overlap across the surface.

The different areas of colour appear to develop through spontaneous movement. Curved outlines, changes in direction and overlapping shapes create a design that departs from rigid geometry, giving the rug a graphic and textured look.

Tufting translates this composition into textiles by gradually working the yarn. The handcrafted process gives depth to the item and highlight the relationship between design, colour and density.

The alternating areas of colour accentuate the individual shapes while keeping them part of a unified composition. The rug appears to be built from fragments that draw together, intersect and find a balance within a free-form outline.

Its irregular shape allows Kaos to match with unconventional furniture settings and interrupt the more precise geometry of sofas, coffee tables and other elements in the living area.

Kaos interprets HESSENTIA's exploration of textile design as a free-flowing composition of shapes, colour and material, in which artisanal tufting transforms the design into an element that brings movement to the space.

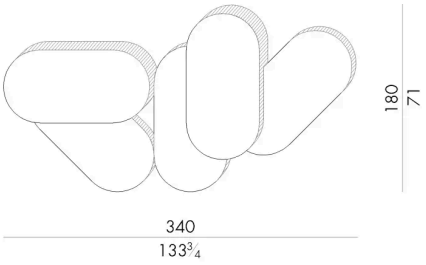

HESSENTIA can customise this item to meet the requirements of your project. Some limitations apply.
