RUG

Trame is a contemporary rug made from fine natural New Zealand wool, crafted on a handloom. The material and weaving technique create a surface that brings strength, softness and tactile presence into balance.

The flatweave technique enhances the natural characteristics of the wool and contributes to the rug's long-term durability. The yarn is worked through a manual process in which structure and surface take shape together.

One of its distinctive features is the characteristic tufts that emerge from the weave. They interrupt the regularity of the surface and introduce subtle variations in relief, making it softer and adding visual depth.

New Zealand wool brings a naturally warm, tactile quality to the design. The weave remains visible, giving the textile material a clear presence without the need for applied decorative elements.

The flat weave and softer reliefs thus create two different impressions within the same surface: a dense, durable structure is interspersed with details that invite touch.

Trame interprets HESSENTIA's textile design through natural wool, handloom weaving and artisanal craftsmanship, transforming the rug into a surface whose structure, material and softness emerge from the same handwork.
